Dear Mr McCulloch,

Thank you for being such a faithful friend! We've recently received your kind gift of £10 and I would like to express my truly sincere thanks to you for your thoughtfulness. I'm sorry it has taken a little while to send you this letter.

When I sent out my Autumn Belief in Action appeal letter and newsletter, I wanted to describe the way in which The Salvation Army is a 'faithful friend' to people who really have no-one else to turn to. Often, by helping in simple but meaningful ways, we enable people to get back on their feet, have the courage to move forward, and find a new fullness of life.

By helping people back into work, we build their self-respect. Through food parcels and debt counselling, we help people through the hardest and bleakest of times. We support and protect victims of modern slavery in our safe houses and help them start a new life. Older people find a new lease of life in our company. Our Lifehouses and our dedicated support are essential steps to getting someone off the streets and back into a home of their own.

Through all of this work, our mission is to be nothing less than a truly faithful friend to people who need us. But for us to be there, we need other faithful friends such as you, to support us in our work.

As the autumn season creeps in and the days become shorter, be assured, your support and friendship are a wonderful source of light and warmth to us, knowing that because of your kindness, we can be there for someone when they need us. Thank you so much, once again, for your generosity. It is never taken for granted.

With my warmest best wishes,

Yours in faith,

Dean Pallant

Dear Mr McCulloch

I am writing to thank you personally for your incredibly generous gift of £15.00 in memory of a loved one to our Christmas Appeal.

2021 has been a challenging and turbulent year for us all, with lockdowns and coronavirus variants hindering our return to normality. But through it all, Marie Curie supporters like you have been steadfast. Your generosity has meant that Marie Curie Nurses have been able to continue providing expert medical care to people living with a terminal illness in their own homes, and in our hospices, throughout the entire pandemic.

I hope that, for all of us, the new year brings the stability that has been missing in 2021. But whatever 2022 holds, Marie Curie is resolute in providing the best end of life care for anyone who needs it. Your gift will play a vital role in making this possible.

The kindness you have shown will have a profound effect on people living with a terminal illness, during their greatest time of need. I hope you will take comfort in the fact that the impact of your gift will be felt very deeply.

So once again, a huge thank you from everyone at Marie Curie!

Warmest regards,

Matthew

Dear Mr McCulloch,

Thank you for your incredibly kind donation of £10 in response to our recent RNID magazine.

Your donation means that people who are deaf, living with hearing loss or tinnitus, will continue to have access to RNID's vital services. Inside your magazine, you may have read about Gerry, who is thrilled that his daughter and others will have access to the new RNID online Hearing Check. He said, "It will encourage them to get their hearing checked earlier – and not wait as long as I did!".

Your donation will help us to continue to support our community through our campaigns for equal rights and life-changing treatments through our ground-breaking research.

Thank you again for your gift. We wouldn't be RNID without you and your continued support.

Should you have any questions or comments about our work, please do not hesitate to contact our Supporter Care Team. You can contact us via email supporter.care@rnid.org.uk or telephone 033 3320 6995.

We'd love to hear from you.

Best wishes,

Dawn Dimond
Editor, RNID

Dear Mr McCulloch,

Your immensely kind Christmas donation of £10 has recently reached us and I'm writing to say a truly sincere – and very warm - 'Thank you' to you. You are a shining star!

Our Christmas fundraising is so important and when we start our appeal, I always offer a prayer and express a hope that it will deliver the funds we need to continue our work. That's why I'm so grateful that you made a donation. The Salvation Army is busy all year round, but the winter and Christmas season is a time when we really do step up our caring work.

We're here for families who have so little, to help make sure they feel supported and that children have a small present to open on Christmas Day. We're here for older people; without us, many would have little or no company at this time of year. We're here for people who are homeless or battling addictions or recovering from forms of slavery – these people need us more than ever at Christmastime.

Christmas is a time when we think of others. Your donation will help us do more than think, it will help us deliver the care, the kindness and the practical support that is at the very heart of The Salvation Army. I'm also thinking of you and how kind you have been to help us in our work. Your thoughtfulness will have helped us deliver a much-needed little bit of Christmas love to someone in need. What could be a better gift than that?

Be assured of my gratitude and be assured also of my warmest greetings and best wishes.

May God bless you at this time.

Faithfully and sincerely,

Dean Pallant

Dear Mr McCulloch

I wanted to get in touch to say thank you from all of us here at Save the Children, for your generous gift of £10 this Christmas. For children, the triple threat of Covid, increasing conflict, and the climate crisis is making tough lives even tougher, and your support is exactly what's needed. You're making a real difference.

You share something important with 600,000 other supporters: the belief that a child shouldn't be limited by their situation - they should be able to become everything they choose to be. And together, with like-minded people like you, there's hope for children - for the future.

There's no way around it - 2022 promises to be a challenging year. But if we work together and take our inspiration from children's resilience, hopefulness and sense of imagination, we'll get through it. Together we can keep powering more possibilities - more magic - for children everywhere.

Thanks again,

Hannah Stephenson
Head of Hunger and Nutrition
Save the Children

Dear Mr McCulloch,

I would like to thank you very much for your donation of £10.00. Your kind gesture could help us find the next big breakthrough in hearing loss and tinnitus research.

With researchers like Dr Warren Bakay on the case – supported by loyal supporters like you – every day we get one step closer to medical discoveries that could prevent hearing loss, restore hearing (for those who want it), or even silence tinnitus – forever.

Should you have any questions or comments about your donation or our work, please do not hesitate to contact our Supporter Care Team. You can contact us via email supporter.care@rnid.org.uk or telephone 033 3320 6995. We'd love to hear from you.

Thank you so much for your wonderful generosity this Christmas.

With warm wishes,

Mr McCulloch, you are amazing!

29 December 2021

I was absolutely over the moon to hear about the £10.00 you gave to Macmillan Cancer Support. Thank you so, so much. Your kindness had me lost for words – and as my fiancé Nick will tell you, that's not something that happens very often! Thank you for also letting us know we can claim Gift Aid which will mean that your donation will go even further.

My letter spoke about people feeling left out in the cold by cancer. But it really warms my heart to know that with gifts like yours, Macmillan can do whatever it takes to help them.

Your gift has come at a really good time. As Christmas gets closer, it's likely going to bring extra worries and stress along with it. It could be a lonely time, a busy time, an expensive time – or a mix of all three. Everyone's situation is different, but one thing's for sure. Macmillan will be able to keep offering support to anyone who needs it this Christmas. And that's down to people like you.

I remember feeling surprised about all the ways Macmillan could offer help when I was struggling. I wrote my last letter because I wanted everyone to know how much Macmillan could do. Now I'm writing this one because I want you to know what a massive difference your donation will make.

Because of your support, people feeling lonely will have a phone call from a Telephone Buddy to look forward to. People with money worries will be able to get advice through the Macmillan Support Line. People struggling to cope with a diagnosis can find an online community of those in the same boat. No matter what their situation, thousands of people living with cancer will be offered a lifeline this Christmas, just like I was. And that's just amazing to think about.

Christmas for me is looking hopeful. After all the support I received last year, I'm looking forward to celebrating with my fiancé and the kids. I'm hoping that this will be the first semi-normal Christmas we've had in a while. But I'll never forget how brilliant Macmillan were when I needed them. And I know they'll always be there if I need them again, because of kind people like you.

So thank you so much for your donation. It really does mean the world.

Wishing you a happy Christmas and a wonderful New Year,

Jenny
